

What is Thyroid Cancer?

Thyroid cancer is the most common endocrine system cancer. It is the most increasing cancer in both men and women.

Thyroid cancer occurs when thyroid nodules become cancerous. Many people have nodules in their thyroid, but more than 90% of these nodules are not cancerous. But when they are cancerous, they must be treated to preserve thyroid function and prevent the cancer from spreading.